BUILD BRIDGES, NOT WALLS

A powerful tool to spread your message is with stencils.

The problem is letter closures, which lose their shape when they're cut out.

The solution is to build bridges to connect the closure to the rest of the stencil. This requires a lot of manual adjustment.

There are a few stencil-compatible fonts, but they tend to be blocky. They don't take advantage of bridges that can be made by laser cutting.

So I created custom bridges for letters, numbers, and symbols that are modern and futuristic. Some letters have variants that are more legible, or more stylized.
